

California Report for Rangelands Partnership 2020 (SEM)

- CalPoly San Luis Obispo (via Marc Horney) The California Range Camp is tentatively going all digital this year. Marc is trying to take the CalPoly Range & Wildlands Club virtual as well. With the whole California State University system (and most others) going online with course content, there will be many more opportunities for public education and outreach that the Rangelands “Partnership might be trying to both facilitate and organize/collect.”
- Humboldt State University (via Susan Edinger Marshall) about 25 undergrads reported to the RSEC Google Sheet. No new faculty hires in sight. Susan is wrapping up a CA Certified Rangeland Manager survey; about 55 responses should give us interesting data about range consulting in California. Susan was elected to parent society SRM Board of Directors and received a Teaching Excellence Award from HSU in 2018-2019.
- U.C. Berkeley (via Lynn Huntsinger) There is a search in progress for a vegetation ecologist, they are hoping to get a range person. Lynn was awarded the prestigious SRM W.R. Chapline Research Award.
- U.C. Davis (via Leslie Roche) Dr. Jennifer Funk will be joining the UC Davis Department of Plant Sciences as an Associate Professor of Grassland Ecology and Management summer 2020. Leslie gave a terrific talk at one of the SRM Plenary sessions in Denver.
